

open archive E-LIS

E-LIS was formed in 2003 for the deposit of documents in the Library and Information Science (LIS) domain. It is the first international e-server in this subject area and resulted from the RCLIS (Research in Computing, Library and Information Science) project and the DoIS (Documents in Information Science), promoted by the Spanish Ministry of Culture and hosted by AEPIC team on machines of the Italian Consorzio Interuniversitario Lombardo per Elaborazione Automatica (CILEA).

E-LIS aims to further the Open Access philosophy by making available papers in LIS and related fields. It is a free-access international archive, in line with the Free Online Scholarship (FOS) movement and the Eprints movement, based on the Open Archive Initiative (OAI) standards and protocols.

E-LIS Meeting 2007 enhancing the access to LIS literature

This Valencia E-LIS Meeting 2007 will be a focus for the dissemination of the Open Access benefits among society and professionals. There, we all will share experiences about technical and editorial matters on Open Access.

The meeting is addressed to researchers, librarians, policy makers, academic staff, information managers... and everyone whose work is related to Science and Technology.

Taking advantage of this international event we have begun to collect data about OAI-compliant projects in each country. The result will be the "Report about the situation of OAI-compliant projects", that will be published together with the Proceedings of the E-LIS Meeting, with statistics and comparative data.
